Karen Head, Georgia Institute of Technology

"The Large Academic Paper: Research - Thesis - Structure"

The presentation will focus on an overview of strategies best suited for structuring and writing a research paper (e.g. BA/MA thesis):

- How to find a topic
- How to design a structure
- How to write an abstract
- How to do research

There will be time for questions and discussion.

Karen Head is Director of the Communication Center at Georgia Tech, and an Assistant Professor in the School of Literature, Media, and Communication. Her research areas focus on writing and communication theory and pedagogical practice, especially in the following areas: implementation and development of writing centers, writing program administration, communication ecologies, technical and business communication, multidisciplinary communication, and creative writing. In 2012-13, she was part of the GT team awarded a Gates Foundation Grant to develop one of the first Massive Open Online Courses (MOOCs) focused on college writing, and she has published about the experience. She has also published three books of poetry (Sassing, My Paris Year, and Shadow Boxes) and exhibited several acclaimed digital poetry projects. An award winning teacher, Head’s courses center on creating a variety of texts that demonstrate adaptation of multimodal rhetorical strategies and tools.

In 2013, she won Georgia Tech’s CETL/BP Junior Faculty Teaching Award.
